HONGKONG, FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1894.

THE official announcement is made of the election of M. Jean Casimir-Péries as President of the French Republic in succession to the late M. Carnot. His recent defeat in the Chamber, which led to the dissolution of his Cabinet and his resignation as Prime Minister, had really no sinister significance, as he was said to have ridden for a fall in order to stand for the Presidency in November. Comparatively little is known of him outside France, and his election, even if it be for a few months, comes almost as a surprise. The only event of unusual importance to bring his name before the public, prior to being called upon to form a Ministry of his own, was his resignation of the office of Under Secretary for War when the Chamber decided, four or five years ago, to expel the Monarchist Pretenders from France. He is said to have Monarchist leanings, which is certainly not surprising in the grandson of the Prime Minister to Louis Philippe He has been described as 'a very rich man, indifferent to office, and determined to obstinacy.' If this is a fair description he will not become popular President; unless, indeed, the widespread feeling of disgust at the violent methods of the anarchist and the extreme socialist becomes more concentrated in character and unites all parties to support M. Casimir-Périer in the interests of law and order—the interests of law and order which represent the natural instinct of self-preservation. Nobedy with a despotic temper has a chance of remaining President for a long time. M. Casimir-Périer has a temper that borders on the despotic. When forming his late Cabinet, disregarding the strong anti-Semitic feeling of the time, he appointed M. Raynal, a Hebrew, as Minister of the Interior; he at once opened a vigorous and successful campaign against the anarchists and defied the socialists when they seemed Credits, 4 months' sight, 2.70 disposed to disregard the law; and lifted On Berlin-Demand 2.14 himself above the petty dissensions that do duty for 'party' in French politics by announcing that in all its executive deeds his Government would act on principles, not in deference to any group in the Chamber. 'He rebuked the Nuncio for disregarding the law which forbids him to interfere in the internal affairs of France except through the Government, but refused, in the plainest words, to appoint Bishops without the Pope's consent. He formed, in fact, a Conservative Republican Government.' M. Casimir-Périer is evidently strong man, with preconceived notions of the high duty of a patriotic statesman. He may guide the destinies of the great Republic with the approbation of the masses and of the classes for a period, but the same power that removed Mac-Mahon, Gambetta, Ferry and Grevy will ultimately drive him from his high position. It was so in the Chamber. The new President stready knows what it is to have been borne along on the current of seeming prosperity and of public approbation. He has also known what it is to be ousted trom office by the machinations and coalitions of party politicians. If he is the wise man his public acts and utterances would seem to indicate, he will regard his present elevation with philosophic equanimity and prepare with true philosophic calm for the time when the mercurial disposition of his countrymen has been worked upon by the designing agitator to procure his overthrow. of the latest and most approved kind, and thing is clear. Though he was successful in persuading party politicians in the Chamber to overlook petty differences and was so enabled to form a Conservative Republican Government, his bold and distinctive line of policy shows that he is possessed of qualities which lift him far above the smaller principles he strove to reconcile. His masterful manipulation of the French parties fit him for what a great writer has set out as the loftiest and noblest function of a and placed on board ship at Hongkong French President, to smooth asperities, to diminish the bad effects of political dissension, and to be watchful of the interests of the country." There is one reason why the change in the Presidency should have an interest outside France. Particularly should the effect of the change be of interest to the British people. The last year of M. Carnot's presidential reign has been marked by a good deal of filibustering in Asia and Africa, and of estentations coquetting with Russia. All this may have been, and probably was, due more to the temperament of the people than to the predilection of the President. But we cannot put out of view the fact that the French President has always a direct and immediate influence on foreign affairs. M. Carnot followed popular caprice overmuch, if he did not initiate France's aggressive Celonial policy. Her policy in Siam has not commended itself outside France. Neither were her diplomatic methods without reproach. ill-tempered and unmannerly attacks upon Lord Dufferin in the French press, and the vitriolic expressions that have appeared from time to time in the same No Credit given for Bottles that look quarter whenever British and French dirty or greasy, or that appear to have been interests were mutually involvedused for any other purpose than that of whicher in Egypt, in Morocco or in containing Acrated Waters, as such Bottles | Central Africa-might all have tended to bring the two countries into conflict had public feeling in Britain been as easily inflamed as it is in France. It remains to be seen what attitude the new President will assume in international affairs. M. Delcassé, the new Colonial Minister in M. Dupuy's Administration is a pronounced Anglophoba -a supporter of the 'forward' Colonial policy of France; and on the very day of his nomination to office published an attack on Great Britain. It is of great importance to Britain to know how far M. Delcassé will be allowed by the new President to indulge his splenetic at-1039 tackson Britain. If the one does not and French interests may be found to clash rather frequently, and though the Jingo spirit is by no means so rampant in Britain as it was a few years ago it is not outside the bounds of possibility that the rope may be strained to breaking point. The result would be deplor-

> THE will case, Sutherland v. Sutherland, commences on 6th inst. before Sir Francis Jeune, the President of the Probate and Divorce Division, and a special jury, and will probably occupy a week. Attempts to arrange an amicable settlement have hitherto fallen through. The following counsel have been retained for the Duke of Sutherland: Sir Henry James, Q.C., M.P., Sir Edward Clarke, Q.O., M.P., Mr Inderwick, Q.O., and Mr Bargrave Deane. The briefs are marked 1,000 guineas each for Sir Henry James and Sir Edward Ularke, and 750 and 500 guineas respectively for the other counsel. For the Dowager Duchess of Sutherland the following counsel have been briefed : Sir Richard Webster, Q.C., M.P. (1,000 guineas), Mr F. Lockwood, M.P. (750 guineas), Mr Bayford Q.C. Under the heading 'What is Chess?' Mr H. E. Bird, 'Souior Chess Master,' writes to the Standard :- Sir, - What is chess, and what constitutes the championship of chess?' I see by the Standard this morning of Her Majesty's ships Swift, Perpoise, that Lasker has beaten Steinitz ten to five, at fifteen moves an hour, and, subject to Station, and a small military draft of the claims of the invincible Dr Tarrasch, of | time-expired men and invalide from both Nuremburg, he will be con-idered for the Bervices. moment the Champion of Chess, but only of slow chess, on conditions foreign to the Nother kinds of chess -(1) the useful, the rapid, and the brilliant, at the average of half an hour or so a game; (2) and what is known as ordinary chess, played at the rate of fifty moves an hour, or an average of near two hours a game. Now, though a player of nearly half a century, I have found sufficient of the old style left in me to more than hold my own against Lasker in more than 100 battles at all-round amusement chess (the only chess worth playing), including the range of gambits and the most enterprising and difficult games. It so happens that the few remaining chess experts are rather of the slow school, and will answer me that Lasker cannot play his best chess at more than fifteen moves an hour. My retort is obvious: neither can I play my best chess at a slow pace fifteen or twenty moves an hour, my average being fifty. If the slow would meet the fast school half-way, at thirty or thirty-five moves an hour, we should, I think, have better choss. Even at that rate a stubbord contest would take long enough for any game. Simpson's, 101 Strand, W.C., May 28.

Monarchical side to a republican constitution, there were enough moderate Republicans to hold in check the revolutionary forces of the Extreme Left. By a combination of courage and address the late Prime Minister seemed to have established the possibility of governing France on something like constitutional principles, and without throwing continual sops to the anarchists on the one side or knuckling down to Reactionaries and anti-Republicans on the other. The result of the five months' experiment is to prove that there are more than enough men on either wing to turn the balance against stable governments. M. Casimir-Perier appears to have become assured that these groups had determined to baulk the that Sir George O'Brien will not return to experiment, and hence he decided to abandon an effort which in the present state of tarty and opinion in France he recognises Minister. to be hopeless. For it is useless to lay the blame on the Chamber; it is the public outside, the maker of the Chamber, which is unstable. We say this although the correspondent of the Standard asserts that the crisis is viewed with indifference by the public and the Bourse. The existence of a vast mass of 'indifferents' in any political community is in itself a danger, and is obviously no protection from the instability caused by the revolving fortunes of powerful factions.

'THE Man of the World,' who writes 'Odds and Ends' in the Pail Mall Gazetie, says it was by Dr. Smith, the then editor of the Quarterly Review, that he was told the following anecdote of Lord Beacousfield. Dr. Smith's authority for the truth of the story is in the fact that he took down the narrative from Lord Qdo Russell, afterwards Lord Ampthili, being at that time Lord Odo Russell's guest at Berlin :- To wards the close of the Congress at Berlin, in 1878, when Russia was interposing every obstacle to bringing the Congress to a close, and could not be induced to give her consent to certain points in dispute, Lord Beaconsfield called one morning, as was his wont, upon Prince Bismarck, to consult him upon some question arising out of the Protocol of the previous day. The quite unexpected news has come from Siam that the King is dangerously ill, and that his death is apprehended at any boat has been subjected to strict inspection, Swift, lying at Bangkok, has telegraphed to this effect to Captain Count Metaxa, Senior Naval Officer at Singapore, and the Admiral has been duly informed by wire. The instructions from Hougkong are understood to be that H. M. S. Leinder is to be held ready to proceed to Siam at four hours' notice: Such a measure would be of course merely precautionary in character. There is no good reason to think that so regrettable an event as the King's death would imply the springing up of any emergency of the nature of political crisis or internal disorder, although in certain quarters, admittedly well-informed, such a contingency is considered as possible, even probable. At any rate if the event now feared is on the point of occurring the result will in a brie time show how far these anticipations are justified. The King was, from private letters received here about five days ago, at Koh-si-chang, and declared to be looking better than usual, to be in excellent spirits. and 'quite his old self again.' BLOOD IS THICKER THAN WATER. On the occasion of the dinner to Admira Erben. Captain Mahan, and the officers of the U.S. cruiser Chicago, at St. James's Hall, on 24th ult., the saying 'Blood i thicker than water was displayed in conspicuous letters. In proposing the health of the United States Navy, Admiral Sir G Phipps Hornby, after paying a tribute to Admiral Erben and Captain Mahan, gave as above saying. It arose when Commodore Tatnall and the United States Navy, after a check in the second China War at the Take Forts to the British arms, sent his men to assist in bringing off the gunboats. The American commander had, at first, only in tended to help the wounded, but when he saw the English getting the worst of it. he cried. 'Blood is thicker than water!' and the Americans fought the English guns This story brought forth great cheering for the United States Navy, and the band played 'America.' The teast was drup! with the greatest 'enthusiasm, and in his speech in reply, Admiral Erben said he and English Navy officers had been in Chins together, and had shared in the tremendous expeditions, years ago, for the suppression of Chinese piracy, which was commemorated both in Happy Valley and in New York. When Commodore Tatnall said the words Blood is thicker than water.' he (the annaker) was with him, and it might be retold that American sailors leaned from their boat and manned and fought a British There was great cheering throughout the hall as the Admiral said this.

Concerning the saying, Commander R. Patton-Jenkins, R.N., writes to The Times: -May I claim your indulgence for an eve and ear witness of the memorable incident referred to in Admiral Erben's speech? THE CHINA REVIEW.

PUBLISHED BI.MONTHLY.

HIS Review, which was intended to much the wants of many students of Chinese caused by the discontinuance of 'Notes and Queries on China and Japan,' has reached its Twenty-first Volume. The Review discusses those topics which are uppermost in the minds of students of the 'Far East' and about which every intelligent person connected with China or Japan is desirous of acquiring trustworthy information. It in-cludes many interesting Notes and original Papers on the Arts, Sciences, Ethnology, Folklore, Geography, History, Literature, Mythology, Natural History, Antiquities, and Social Manners and Customs, etc., etc., of China, Japan, Mongolia, Tibet, and the Far East generally. Recently a new departure has been taken, and the Review now gives papers on Trade, Commerce, and Descriptive notes of Travel by well-known writers. It was thought that by extending the scope of the Review in this direction, the Magazine would be made more generally

The Review department receives special attention, and endeavours are made to present a careful and concise record of Literature on China etc., and to give critiques embodying sketches of the Most recent works on such topics. Authors and Publishers are requested to forward works to 'Editor, China. Review, care of China Mail Office.

The Notes and Queries are still continued and form an important means of obtaining from and diffusing among students knewledge on obscure points.

The Correspondents' column also affords farther and greater facilities for the interchange of views and discussion of various Original contributions in Chinese, Latin, or any of the Modern Languages are received. The papers are contributed by the members of the various Consular, the Imperial Customs, and Hongkong Services, and also by the Missionary bodies amongst whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is assiduously cultivated. Amongst the regular contributors are Drs. Chalmers, Eitel, Bretschneider, and Hirth, Professor Legge, and Mesars Balfour, Watters, Stent, Phillips, MacIntyre, Groot, Jamieson, Faber, Kopsch, Parker, Playfair, Giles, Piton, and Taylor,-all well-known names, indicative of sound scholarship and thorough mastery of their subject.

The Subscription is fixed at $6.50 per annum, postage included -- payable in ad-

Orders for binding volumes will promptly attended to; Address, 'Manager, China Mail Office.'

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS. 'All our learned societies should subscribe to this scholarly and enterprising Iteview.'-Northern Christian Advocate (U.S.) 'The China Review * * * * has an excellent table of contents.'-Celestial Empire. The Publication always contains subjects of interest to sojourners in the Far East and the present issue will hold favourable if not advantageous comparison, with preceding numbers.'-Celestial Empire. This number contains several articles of interest and value.'-North-China Herald.

'The China Review for September-October fully maintains the high standard excellence which characterises that publiand altogether forms a very interesting and readable number. Meteorologists will find an interesting and valuable contribution by Dr. Fritsche, on "the Amount of Precipitation (Rain and Snow) of Peking," showing the results of observations made at the Imperial Russian Observatory at Peking, from 1841-1880. "Notes on the Dutch Occupation of Formosa," by Mr. Geo. Phillips, contains some interesting information, although much of it is second-hand. The Notices of New Books include a most generous and appreciative review of "The Divine Classic of Nan-Hua," and the Notes and Queries are as usual very interesting.' -North-China all students of China and the Chinese would do well to patronise.'-Ohrysanthemum. 'The November-December number of the China Review contains less variety than usual, but the few articles are very interesting. The opening paper by Mr Herbert A. Giles on "The New Testament in Chinese" treats of a question that must necessarlly be of great importance in the eyes of all missionaries. . . Mr E. H. "Short Journeys in Szechuen"

'A aubstantial and reliable Review which are continued, and a goodly instalment of these travels in the interior of China is Mr F. H. Balfour contributes a paper of some length entitled "The Emperor Cheng, founder of the Chinese Empire," which will be read with genuine interest by students of Chinese history. A few short notices of New Books and a number of Notes and Queries, one of which "On Chinese Oaths in Western Borneo and Java" might appropriately have been placed under a separate heading, complete the number.'—H.K. Daily Press.

Trubner's Oriental Record contains the following notice of the China Review:-The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position, as regards China and the neighbouring countries, some what similar to that which has been filled in India by the Calcutta Review. The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years upon the investigation of Chinese literature. antiquities, and social developments, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publighty as is now provided extremely desirable; and contributions of much interest msy fairly be looked or from the members Société Francaise des Charbonof the foreign consular services, the Chinese Onstoms' corps, and the missionary body, among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated, and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors Some translations from Chinese novels and plays are marked by both accuracy and freshthe Chinese poet-statesman of the eleventh century, Su Tung-p'o, by Mr. E. C. Bowra, is not only historically valuable, but is also distinguished by its literary grace. Beside notices of new books relating to China and the East, which will be a useful feature the Review, if carried out with punctuality and detail, we are glad to notice that 'Notes' and 'Queries' are destined to find a place in its pages also. It is to be hoped that this opening for contributions on Chinese subjects may evoke a similar degree of literary zeal to that which was displayed during the lifetime of its prede-
